There's a Difference in Bread

HOLSUM

Proves It

One loaf of this fine quality bread convinces you that it is everything its name implies—wholesome, appetizing and rich in nourishment. You notice its superiority almost at once.

No wonder! Only the finest materials are used in HOLSUM—every ingredient and the particular grade of every ingredient contributes something of value to the loaf.

HOLSUM will prove to you, day after day, that "there's a difference in bread." This difference is just the reason it should be the bread on your table. Always ask for it by name. Don't say "bread"—say HOLSUM.

The size of the audience led church officers to believe that it contained a number of friends of the Klan who knew of the Klan's purpose to make a contribution.

The Importance of a "Right" Labor Policy

In his new book, "The Organization of Modern Business", W. R. Basset says:

"One hears a good deal about the iron heel of capitalist despotism squeezing blood profit out of the poor, down-trodden worker. But, I have yet to discover a company that became really prosperous when operated on the lemon-squeezer principle."

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) long since appreciated the essential value of putting the "right" labor policy into practice. And such a policy is as important to the community as it is to the Company.

The only way to achieve a "right" labor policy is to consider it in its broad aspect as affecting the whole social fabric. Consumers as well as employers and employees profit by industrial peace. The public as a whole suffers when an industry does not afford economic protection to its workers and their families.

The Directors of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) in every policy they institute, consider all parties involved—consumers, stockholders, workers, and the public as a whole.

The keystone of this Company's policy is that all must be benefited by its existence as an industrial organization.

One of the latest plans by which the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has recognized the partnership of its workers, is to establish a death benefit plan for the dependents of its employees. It must be clearly recognized that this policy is not a benefit solely to the employees. It benefits, indirectly, every one in the community because it is a forward-looking, sound, economic measure.

A sage summary of the service rendered by this measure is given by the Lapeer, Michigan, Clarion:

"The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has insured the lives of its 25,000 employees. The insurance costs the employees nothing. The Company pays the premiums."

"Here we have a splendid example of the new spirit which is pervading industry, and which if persisted in must eventually level the barriers that often lie between employer and employee."

"There may have been a time when corporations exploited their employees and yielded to them in better wages and working conditions only as they were forced to do so. Possibly a number of this type of corporation survives, but they are passing. Mutual distrust and antagonism is giving way to mutual friendliness and co-operation. If a social revolution ever threatened this country, the menace is fading. The ground is too barren."

"This single generous act of the Standard Oil Company will do more to sweeten the relations between capital and labor than all the propaganda in the world."

Wisconsin Congressmen and the McNary-Haugen Bill

In his speeches made in Iowa and in Minnesota, Candidate Wheeler charged that the failure of congress to enact remedial legislation during the last congress was due to the attitude of republican "reactionary" congressmen who joined with "reactionary" democrats in defeating such measures as the McNary-Haugen bill. In the course of his remarks he said several times:

"The representatives of the farmers came to Washington last winter and sought to get legislation passed that would place them on an equal footing with the manufacturers of the east. They said: 'If the tariff is a good thing, as you republicans have told us, pass the Norris-Sinclair or the McNary-Haugen bill so we can derive some benefit from it.'"

Now it so happens that there was a wide difference of opinion in reference to the McNary-Haugen bill among both farm organizations and congressmen representing farm districts. President Coolidge favored the Norris-Sinclair bill which was of a different kind and was advocated strongly by farmers in the grain growing states. It was backed by Senator Peter Norbeck, of South Dakota, and by Congressman Burnside of North Dakota. The measures for farm relief come directly home to Wisconsin congressmen and the attitude of the delegation from this state will show that Senator Wheeler is denouncing at least six of the Wisconsin congressmen who voted against the McNary-Haugen bill, as "reactionaries."

There is no record, either, of Senator La Follette lifting his voice for the bill. Voigt, who made a speech against the McNary-Haugen bill, Becker, Schneider, Schaefer and Peavey voted against it—six La Follette congressmen. These six are therefore under the Wheeler ban. Listen to him:

"There is not a senator from any of these middle western or western states," says Wheeler, "who does not know this (but reactionaries killed the McNary-Haugen bill) and also that, had this mythical strong, cautious, silent man in the White House used his influence on the side of the farmers instead of on the side of those who would exploit the farmer for their own selfish interests, we would have legislation which would have helped the farmers of this country."

One hundred republicans voted for this bill, 151 against, and Berger, one socialist, was opposed. Congressman Voigt said it was unworkable and he had prepared a substitute. Senator Wheeler knows that the "silent, cautious man" in the White House wanted farm legislation. Mr. Coolidge asked it in his message. He was clear about it in his New York speech. He repeated it again and again. Neither as for nor against these bills does the name of La Follette appear. But one is led to wonder just how these Wisconsin congressmen like Wheeler's broadcasting to the world that they are "reactionaries." It is the most heinous political crime in their calendar and they may regret it but probably will not.

McAdoo is home and he may join William J. Bryan in at least supporting half of the democratic ticket.

The Ballot in California

It was a Wisconsin man, Supreme Court Justice Myers of California, who was responsible for the decision against the placing of the La Follette electors on an independent ticket. In that state, Chief Justice Myers was reared at Lake Mills. While the decision is held to be entirely legal and entirely within the letter of the law, it has created a profound disturbance as to whether it is not a perversion of the spirit of the law. There has been much agitation about the decision in California and capital has been made outside the state. Here in Wisconsin, with the memory of the recent "republican" platform election rather fresh in mind, and the methods pursued in making a state of electors for Coolidge; and with the knowledge that electors are on the Coolidge ticket in North Dakota, who are expected to vote for La Follette, the sorrow is somewhat mitigated over the California situation. In North Dakota the republicans who want to vote for Coolidge will be unable to do so with the knowledge that the whole number of electors will vote for their candidate for president. In California while the La Follette electors will be on the socialist ticket, the citizens will know they can vote that ticket and the vote will be counted for La Follette. However we are of the opinion that so long as politicians were elected by a large number of voters and the purpose was to place the electors on an independent ticket for support of La Follette, the court failed to interpret the spirit of the law when it decided that there was no place for the candidate's name separately. Many causes thrive more by opposition than by support and a wrong in Wisconsin does not equalize another in California.

Arthur Brisbane, Hearst paper writer, says he will support Calvin Coolidge for president. That makes it almost unanimous.

Dances and Reclamations

In his famous Falla speech Mr. Davies bore hard on the point he had made in his Lincoln address that reclamation was not an altogether unmitigated blessing. Candidate Davis criticized Mr. Davies for his address at Lincoln and severely took to task the Coolidge administration for the failure to pass the reclamation bill in the last hours of congress. However, Mr. Davies spoke on this subject as he has on many others, without understanding. It so happens that the head of the publicity bureau of the democratic national committee is Senator Key Pittman, of Nevada. When

THE AMERICAN GOVERNMENT

VI—The Bureau of Standards.

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN.

The National Bureau of Standards is a house of wonders. Its hundred laboratories are in proof that truth is stranger than fiction. The marvel of it is not merely that its experts weigh to one part in a billion or talk and work to the millionth of an inch, the millionth of a second, or the billionth of an ampere, but that such ultra-precision is of the utmost practical use.

In the main building is the standards vault. It contains the national standard which governs all weighing in the United States. It is kept with almost religious care. So delicate are the balances used that the crossing of the letter "v" in a penciled signature can easily be weighed. The change in weight when a piece of metal is raised 1 inch from the earth can be measured. Recently a series of crystals was weighed with an error less than one part in a billion.

In another room means are being devised for ruling 25,000 or more lines within 1 inch, straight and parallel, with no error in spacing so much as one-millionth of an inch. Such a ruled surface has the power to analyze a ray of light from a star or an atom to tell what it is made of, to measure the light waves, and to disclose the structure of the atom. An expert recently measured and certified the size of an incredible bit of diamond point microdrilling on glass so small that the Lord's prayer was invisible to the naked eye. Forty Billies could be written at that rate on 1 square inch.

An impressive sight is the giant testing machine, with a pulling power of 1,150,000 pounds and a crushing power of 2,500,000 pounds. Titan which crushes to destruction a huge structural column or tears apart a steel shaft 6 inches in diameter. It records the crushing force of a thousand tons or that required to crush an egg-shell.

Fifteen years were well spent in preparing the basic fundamental standards of length and mass. Respective standards of length and mass are kept at the Bureau. No factor is too slight, no labor too exacting, when national standards are involved. Science blossoms into discovery with such new advance in precision. The bureau's creed holds that progress rests on that refined scrutiny of things which expresses itself in precise measurement.

In one room an expert is making master gages, slay the thick coils, true to size within one two-hundred-thousandth of an inch. In a nearby room the visitor may behold by optical means the bending of tool-steel shafting 3 1/2 inches thick beneath the weight of a visiting car.

The layman hardly appreciates how important the work of the bureau is to him. Its groceries are old by measures controlled ultimately by the bureau's standards; his electric light conforms to its specifications; his doctor's thermometer is tested and certified here; from the drug-glass prescription to the ton of coal, every household measurement rests upon standards maintained in our national laboratory.

Materials in great variety are sent here, literally to have their fortunes told, not by occult crystal gazers, but by experts with microscope and test tube. The materials range from horseshoe nails for the army made to cement for the Panama Canal. They include leather, rubber, and textiles; bookmaking materials such as paper, ink, type, glue, and cloth; structural materials such as metals, lumber, concrete, brick, plaster, paints, and varnishes; office supplies such as writing paper, sealing wax, mullage, and typewriter ribbons. Inks and dyes are faded by ultraviolet rays; papers are burst, folded, and pulled, to measure durability; typewriter supplies are tested in service by high speed automatic means; scarcely a material escapes the scientific test. Where flaws are detected, specifications are made more definite by the maker and user jointly. The result is a steady rise in the quality of materials.

To measure the heat of a single star, an instrument has been designed and made which is so delicate that it is responsive to the heat of a candle several hundred miles away. Valuable as this work on the stars has been, opening up a new art for the astronomer, it comes closer home. The studies in heat waves reflected and absorbed by various materials led to the announcement that a tent will keep out 50 per cent of the sun's heat if the cloth is painted outside with white paint and inside with aluminum paint, and that painting the roof of an ice wagon with aluminum paint will cut off half the heat which usually gets through to melt the ice. The building industry was astonished to learn that for the same reason a radiator painted with aluminum is only one-third as efficient as one painted with ordinary paint.

When a leather shortage impended, experts sought new sources of leather and turned the search to shark skin. Sharkskin, tanned and stretched, was found suitable for the manufacture of leather. The same experts studied the wear and tear of shoes, the quality of leather, and turned the results over to the American shoemakers. A walking machine was invented to imitate and speed up the wearing out of sole leather by walking. The machine gives the same wear in a few hours as months of service would give.

Extremes heat and diverse problems depend for solution on simple facts scientifically applied. From tooth filling to nonchoking a scalded kitchen, there is not so far, for the scientist, as the same problem are involved in both. If metal and glass expand or contract differently with heat and cold, the glass will crack; if tooth and amalgam expand and contract differently, the filling works loose. At dinner this happens when we close the meat with hot coffee and ice-cream.

Research on these two problems requiring the microscope made it clear that just how much material expands with heat resulted in kitchen economy and mouth comfort to the American people.

Mounted on an automobile ready for the road is a wonderful piece of mechanism which makes an automatic and graphic record of the performance of an automobile in full road service. It records measured data for 16 items of automobile performance which the designer needs to develop a better power system. Thus a new era opens up for designer and builder by enabling them to use the measured performance of their cars as a sort of road condition, car operation, wind, and grade. The perfect car of the future is being created by such tests.

the reclamation bill was up for passage in the senate, during the closing hours of the last session, Senator Pittman entered a strenuous objection and started a filibuster which killed it. Hence Mr. Davis should confine his criticism to the ranks of his own party. It was special privilege that dominated the action of Pittman since some of the things he wanted in the reclamation bill for Nevada were for the special benefit of a few in Nevada. This same Pittman was opposed to the measure which would have established a new market for silver and ended the merchandising of silver bullion to the United States at an inflated price, where he appeared again as the agent for special interests—the silver miners of his own state.

Now York certainly is strong on entertainment. There was Pat Harrison of Mississippi and Sol Levitan making speeches in Manhattan the same night.

After reading Senator Wheeler's speeches we cannot understand why the police of Washington do not at once arrest Calvin Coolidge and lock him in jail.

POSSESSIONS

"Taddy," she said, "who owns the sky?"
 And Taddy whispered: "Not and I."
 "Who owns the stars so bright, so clear?"
 And I smiled and answered: "We do, my dear."
 "Who owns the sun and the moon and the breeze?"
 "Taddy," said: "We own all of these."
 "Who owns that field with the pretty flowers?"
 "Well, just for the present, that field is ours."
 "Who owns the birds that are singing now?"
 Said I: "They are every bird, my dear."
 "Then, Daddy, we're rich," said my little niece,
 "For we own everything we can see."
 "Yes," I answered: "That's very true.
 We are all of us rich if we only know.
 We are all of us rich, the great and small,
 In the vast possessions that give us life."

HOROSCOPE

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1924.

Uranus in benefic aspect dominates this day, according to astrology. Saturn is adverse. For this first day of the month the planetary influences give promise of much business activity and a better feeling in the commercial world. It is a most auspicious day for traveling, removing or seeking distant business affiliations. The traveling salesman should find this a lucky date on which to start his tour. He should not be afraid to get away from old methods of obtaining customers.

Uranus is in a place supposed to impart clear vision and encouraged understanding. This rule is exceedingly good for conventional and conservative persons whose foresight should be most trustworthy at this time.

All who have political vision should discern clearly a new path for more progress in the national campaign.

Diplomatic blunders again loom large on the horizon and it will be wise for the United States to be especially careful in one quarter, and that is where the stars and stripes should be most prominently displayed.

Danger of riots is again foretold, for there are sinister aspects awaiting for bitter discussions in which labor and religious questions are involved.

Months ago astrologers foretold the movement of troops this month and they now call attention to the fact that a day and night demonstration, providing police and army, will be of an ultimate not recognized by average minds.

Uranus is in a place that has great significance and is read as pressing discussions within political party lines which will be of grave consequence.

Persons whose birthday it is may expect a successful year in which they have pleasant changes. Those who are employed should be particularly lucky.

Children born on this day may be restless and easily bored. These subjects of Libra are often successful in speculative business. They should be clever and long-lived.

NEWSPAPER TALK

If some people would try as hard to climb to the heights of the newspaper as they do to the heights of the world, the world would be a great world.—Mantowice Herald.

With styles as they are, it may be that man tells Satan to get behind him because the old is obstructing the view.—Marquette Eagle-Star.

If we could have a few less of clean sweeps at elections, and a few more of clean sweeps in the political offices, it would be for the public benefit.—Eau Claire Leader.

Three governors out of 48 opposed Defense day. They were those of Maine, Wisconsin and Colorado. The people were with them, and they stand alone.—Racine Journal.

These politicians must be a rather thick skinned set to judge from the amount of reciprocal favoring reported daily in the papers, without apparently caring whom twice over a little bit.—Superior Telegram.

The advice of a speaker at a local teachers' meeting to send school girls home to wash their faces when they appear with artificially colored cheeks, was all right in its way—but some of the girls seem to have taken the water proof enamel.—Wausau Record-Herald.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Noted Physician and Author.

ANOTHER TIRED BUSINESS MAN
 The doctor calls him an aggressive, long-acting business man, aged 35, who complained of a constant dull ache over the eye—this is the back of the eye—slight dizziness, restlessness, insomnia and depression. These symptoms had developed only two weeks previously, and I'm afraid the doctor felt in with the t. h. man's life he had lost his "peak."

This young man organized a business of his own at the age of 32 years, and devoted himself to it with unusual intensity because he loved his business and the competition in it. He had no interest in the popular diversions. "He took little time off and few excursions. All this is negative stuff, but important."

The young man used liquor moderately and like most quiet boozers he particularly emphasized that. He took it only in a "social" way. That isn't so negative. He was also an "inconstant" cigar smoker. That's very positive. Whenever you encounter the terms "inconstant" or "inconsistent" in relation to a man's use of tobacco you may get ready for something to break.

How tall was his doctor carefully omits to say, but the doctor does say the man was "adequately nourished." Sounds kinda funny, to me. The young man probably ate as intelligently as he drank and smoked, and he was one of those small caliber men who get so "entombed" or taken up with business that they just can't take time to exercise. So, you see, the young man was headed for a fall. And he fell.

He had seemed normal in size and position, but his pulse rate was rather fast. I won't count it, but we'll just say it was a wee bit too fast.

The systolic blood pressure was well within normal limits, and so was the diastolic pressure. Never mind just how many millimeters of mercury his blood pressure was, because we all know it.

No abnormality was elicited in the examination of the nervous system. Wassermann test negative. Urinalysis negative. No abnormality in the digestive tract, which doesn't mean much, unless the patient is on a restricted diet.

The patient displayed considerable fatigue when asked to perform any of the usual tests. He was tired, but he was a little fearful in telling his wife he was tired, and his life was being ruined. He was tired, but he was a little fearful in telling his wife he was tired, and his life was being ruined.

His doctor strongly advised change and rest, but of course the patient could not think of leaving his business.

The Able McLaughlins

By MARGARET WILSON
(Copyright Harper & Bro.)

Libby was groping about for her shoes which she had left in the kitchen. Just near home, Isabel, forty years from her mother's door, said: "You can't stand up, Libby. You're crawling towards home, it may be."

"Libby! Libby!" cried Isabel, getting up. "Forty years from home! You had found the girl's skeleton the next spring. In a place a hundred men would swear in court they had sought through generations. The mother herself had come upon it. Had the child been stolen away for some evil purpose, and time back later to die? No one would ever know."

"The wee bones were all white, Isabel!"

"Space us, Libby! Peter's a man grown!"

The women went out calling down the road together. At dawn, when John McLaughlin came out to work, while the girls were shining, he heard Libby calling hoarsely, "Lambert! Lambert! Your mother's coming!"

CHAPTER XVII

By that time men were beginning to gather about the house, and the old, bearded man came out to work, while the girls were shining, he heard Libby calling hoarsely, "Lambert! Lambert! Your mother's coming!"

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise all mothers about the care of their children of any age, or on any subject which does not belong in the field of the doctor.

Mrs. R. L. D., writes: "I have for a neighbor the mother of nine children who insists that I am not feeding my 15-month-old child right. She thinks he should come to the table with us and have the food we eat, excepting, of course, the salt. She says he is 25 pounds, has 11 teeth. He takes a three-hour nap daily, and sleeps from 7 at night until 7 in the morning. He has four bottles daily and in addition cream, vegetables such as carrots, chicken and beef broth, occasionally a codded egg, and cream of wheat twice a day."

"Is the new crop of potatoes and apples all right to use?"

Answer: "Your own good sense should tell you that there is no magic in 'table food.'"

"Some mothers cannot bear to see modern mothers doing differently than they, even though the results are excellent. You are feeding exactly right, and keeping the baby away from the table where he will have no chance to see and desire foods that are not good for him, and which you should be continually tempted to give him—will save him and yourself infinite trouble. A baby who is never fed with the family but always at his own time and in his own high chair until he is ready for the three meals a day will never cry and fuss for bites of food which have no place in his dietary. The mother of nine very likely reared her children the best she knew in her own day—she should be ashamed to realize that 'times do move' and that you have a perfect right to do the same now."

The potatoes are all right if well baked, but the apples are still too green for such a young child.

ANSWERED LETTERS

Jackie—An oily scalp comes from an abnormal condition of the general system, a condition of this will be needed to bring about a cure. Frequently the trouble comes from faulty elimination. Sun and air baths for the scalp will help local condition, and always use very cold water as fast rinse after a shampoo; this stimulates the circulation and is helpful in bringing about an improvement in any unwholesome condition.

Instead of frequent shampooing remove some of the oil from the hair each day by wiping it out with soft towels.

Kitty—If the hair is thick a liquid or a soft soap is best for shampooing. Any soap dissolved in water will be all right to use this way. There is no reason why you should not do this for yourself, but you should remember that hair as thick as yours will need a great deal of rinsing to get all the soap out of it.

You could not improve upon the preparation for your arms in which there is no soap, rose water and bay rum. Use a bath brush when bathing the skin that has the tendency to roughness.

Discouraged—You may have taken the blood purifier for a much longer time than necessary, and the result will be to thin out your blood too much. Purifier could mean from such a condition. Consult your doctor.

Uncertain—When massaging face with a cleansing cream, use the tips of the fingers and merely aim to lubricate the skin so as to dissolve the soap in the pores. Your face should not feel hot after gentle treatment such as this.

Grateful—The pimples of the little girl of 14 are the result of certain changes that are now taking place in her system. You are doing the right thing in keeping her on a simple and nourishing diet.

Any of the honey and almonds preparations used on your hands will do much to counteract the effects of housework. A few drops rubbed into the skin will be enough, and the advantage in using these mixtures when you are working is that they leave the skin perfectly dry so there need be no interruption in the work.

James—Bampering your hair each day to curl it will not hurt it. Massage your scalp daily as that will stimulate the circulation so the secretions will be normal.

Wednesday—A Double Chin.

Uncle John watched his nephew and some other little boys playing as soldiers, attacking a fort. "Tommy," he said, "if you and your side can take that fort in half an hour I'll give you a quarter."

About two minutes later there came an answer. "Uncle, can I have that quarter now? We've taken the fort."

"That was very smart," said Uncle John, handing over the coin. "How did you manage it so quickly?"

"Oh, I just offered the other side a dime to give in," answered Tommy.

"Miss Curlycue," murmured the office manager to the stenographer, "I don't wanna be harsh. Nothing like that. I really don't."

"I have the answer," said the stenographer, "What's gone wrong now?"

"I just wanna ask you not to write your young man during business hours. Letters are not to get mixed up with love letters. We have sent 'em a shipment of love and kisses instead of the axle grease they ordered."

ASHLEY MAY ESCAPE FINE FOR ATTACK

Dan Ashley will have opportunity to escape a fine for his recent attack on Jesse Osborn if he will pay Osborn's hospital bill, Judge H. L. Maxwell said Tuesday, after a conference with District Attorney S. G. Dunwiddie, the latter recommending that the case be disposed of in this way. According to the testimony, Osborn struck the first blow and Ashley retaliated with a smash on the head with a chair putting Osborn in Mercy hospital.

Chicago Elevator.
Chicago—Fresh buying on the part of houses in the city connected with the wheat market today to the high price record both for the December and the May deliveries, and the European demand for flour as well as wheat was reported. Besides, in the wheat market, the Chicago department of agriculture, that the total acreage of wheat in the United States is 55,000,000 acres, a total greatly below recent estimates from European authorities.

Opening prices, which ranged from 10c lower to 5c higher, with Dec. 1924 at $1.11 1/2 and May 1925 at $1.12 1/2, were followed by a slight additional sag for deferred deliveries and then by a recovery to the opening level.

Subsequently all deliveries of wheat and the previous top prices were reached. The market was then followed by a recovery to the opening level. The close was unsettled, 1/2c to 1/4c higher, Dec. 1924 at $1.11 1/2 and May 1925 at $1.12 1/2.

Corn and oats turned up, owing to sympathy with wheat. At first, however, the corn market was easier, as a result of current operations that most of the crop is now reported to be in good condition. The corn market was then followed by a recovery to the opening level. The close was unsettled, 1/2c to 1/4c higher, Dec. 1924 at $1.11 1/2 and May 1925 at $1.12 1/2.

WORKERS BUSY IN $6,700 CAMPAIGN

Salvation Army Drive Figures for First Day Not Available.

Aside from reports of advance committee, very little in the way of returns from the Salvation Army $6,700 drive was reported for the first day. Women's teams did some work in the residence districts Monday but did not report the results. One small district in the business section was canvassed. No returns are expected from the industrial division canvass until the last of the week. Advance subscriptions and other returns on file at campaign headquarters Tuesday morning totaled $258.

A number of representative community leaders have signed endorsements of the Salvation Army and its work to the campaign headquarters. Among these endorsements are the following:

John W. Gross, Jr., Com. Richard Little Post No. 295, American Legion.

"The Salvation Army was the one organization that came through the fiery test of the World War without criticism. I believe every service man has a warm spot in his heart for the great work the Army did among the boys at the front. I shall always be glad to say a word of commendation for the Salvation Army."

William McCue, City Councilman.

"The Salvation Army is an institution that Janesville cannot afford to be without. It does not in any way take the place of the church, but it supplements the church by doing work that the church is not organized and equipped to do."

Dean J. E. Ryan, Pastor, St. Patrick's Church.

"I am a friend to the Salvation Army. It is a friend to the friendless. The legitimate needs of the Salvation Army should be promptly met."

Alexander E. Matheson.

Endorsed by Citizens.

A number of representative community leaders have signed endorsements of the Salvation Army and its work to the campaign headquarters. Among these endorsements are the following:

John W. Gross, Jr., Com. Richard Little Post No. 295, American Legion.

"The Salvation Army was the one organization that came through the fiery test of the World War without criticism. I believe every service man has a warm spot in his heart for the great work the Army did among the boys at the front. I shall always be glad to say a word of commendation for the Salvation Army."

William McCue, City Councilman.

"The Salvation Army is an institution that Janesville cannot afford to be without. It does not in any way take the place of the church, but it supplements the church by doing work that the church is not organized and equipped to do."

Dean J. E. Ryan, Pastor, St. Patrick's Church.

The telephone company figures its investment for rate-making purposes in 1924 at $177,154. It was brought out, whereas in 1920 the valuation was only $221,354. Mr. Cunningham said he declared the figures furnished by Mr. Cash, who was present at the meeting, did not show how this higher figure had been reached.

Mr. Cunningham stated further that the company's figures showed the average cost per phone in Janesville to be $28.25 per year whereas the most the commission has ever allowed is $19 per year. Another angle brought out by Cunningham through questioning of Mr. Cash was that the revenue from toll charges is not included in the company's statement of revenue.

"I feel," said Mr. Atwood, "that this company, the same as any other, is entitled to a fair return on its investment and if the increase is justified we want to know it. By all means, we should not lay down on the job."

President Jensen advocated the appointment of a special committee to handle the case, the same way the New Gas Light company's last application for rate increases was handled.

The telephone company figures it is losing 2.69 per cent on its investment of $277,154 on the basis of present revenues amounting to $137,329, expenses being shown as $149,827 a year and estimated at $151,404 for 1925. By a 34,000 increase in revenue, a net return would be $22,515, or 1.64 per cent, the statement shows.

"I have been in a lot of rate-making cases," said City Manager Trasker, "and it has been my experience in every instance that there is a wide difference in the valuation as fixed by the utility and that figure is by distorted appraisal."

mission of the company's general offices in Milwaukee.

Publicity is circulated.

City Manager Trasker reported that the telephone company had circulated a petition among business men and had some 500 signers agreeing to higher phone rates.

"I think," said Councilman William McCue, commenting on this statement, "that most of those who signed that petition did so on the belief that the telephone company should be entitled to a return of four percent on its investment. They did not necessarily approve of a rate increase by signing."

"I missed that petition and it was my feeling when I did so that the company should be entitled to a reasonable return on its investment," declared President J. K. Jensen. "If the figures explained to me by the company are correct then I felt the rates should be increased, but I am not so sure that the figures given are entirely correct."

"Valuation is important." City Attorney Cunningham said there is a possibility of the railroad commission making sufficient investigation to preclude the necessity of the city hiring expert appraisers, particularly in view of the fact that phone increases are sought in several other cities at this time. However, it was held, the city should be prepared to make an investigation in case the commission does not go into the matter deeply enough.

Mr. Cunningham brought out that the city's position is the all important item in rate determination. The rest is simply a matter of book-keeping, President Jensen added.

"I have been in a lot of rate-making cases," said City Manager Trasker, "and it has been my experience in every instance that there is a wide difference in the valuation as fixed by the utility and that figure is by distorted appraisal."

AIR HEROES START EAST VIA TRAIN

Flyers Deeply Touched by Unveiling of Monument to Their Exploit.

(By Associated Press)

Seattle—Abandoning the planes in which they completed the first circumnavigation of the globe, six Allied States army lieutenants left Seattle at 2:30 a. m. by train for Dayton, O., to witness the international air races. The airman plan to return here in time to claim their place at Sand Point aviation field.

Lieut. Smith said last night he came "close to crying when I saw a monument commemorating the world flight, unveiled at Sand Point yesterday, because I wasn't expecting it and never thought of a monument with my name on it until my head was under it."

The monument, a polished granite column 15 feet high, with a model of the globe on top from which bronze symbolize a bird, is a gift of Mrs. Francis Cole of Spokane, sister of Lieut. Leslie P. Arnold, mechanic for Lieut. Lowell Smith. It was dedicated and modelled by Victor Alonso Lewis, Seattle sculptor.

The Seattle Chamber of Commerce presented each flyer with a small metal replica of the monument.

A sidelight of the world flight was revealed by Lieut. Wade who stated that the trip influenced the growth of hair.

"Most of us who had fine heads of hair when we left Seattle in April have lost some," he said. "My hair has been coming out rather fast. Lieut. Nelson, who was considered bald headed at the start of the flight, complained the journey with a thick and general growth of fine hair. Lieut. Smith came home with grey hair, faintly streaking his dark head. A few grey hairs have crept into the heads of several of us."

The flyers are to be routed over the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul.

Madison—Wisconsin football stock went up a notch. Monday, when "Pete" Nelson, and on the Badger team last year, reported for practice after sustaining a collision in the line of scrimmage by a special examination, Saturday.

Nelson will try out for a tackle position. He has had considerable experience and will make a valuable member for the team, in the opinion of observers.

Ryan Monday took stock of the condition in which his team came through the game with North Dakota and found that with the exception of the center, the rest of the team was in good shape. Several of the team members sustained bruise, and Leo Heinmon, fullback, received a broken nose.

The squad went through a stiff drill and flubbing up practice. Monday afternoon, in preparation for a heavy game, the squad during the next three days in preparation for the Iowa
